Or not.

Family life is complicated. Sometimes it's even dangerous.

"...Disturbing and frightening.... A kind of raw, physical prose that I found quite impressive."

— Daniel Menaker, The New Yorker
